My parents took me camping when I was growing up	I worry that air pollution has affected my health	I've been to Yosemite	I consider myself an environmentalist
If I had to choose between protecting human rights and protecting the environment, I would protect human rights first	I've lived someplace where I didn't drink the tap-water	I grew up in a politically active family	I don't like camping
I often buy organic food	I speak more than one language	My home is located more than 500 feet away from the closest freeway	There were safe places to play in the neighborhood I grew up in
I've been to the State Capitol	If I had to choose between protecting human rights and protecting the environment, I would protect the environment first	My parents are from another country	There is a grocery store in my neighborhood
